

Internal Vacancy Announcement –Director
Ryan Family Center for Global Primary Care
Robert J. Havey, MD Institute for Global Health
Northwestern University – Feinberg School of Medicine

The Robert J. Havey, MD Institute for Global Health in the Northwestern University Feinberg School of Medicine (FSM) is searching for an existing Northwestern University faculty member to serve as Director of the Ryan Family Center for Global Primary Care. A successful candidate for this important leadership position will be responsible for maintaining a research program as an independent investigator, while providing leadership for the center’s members, as well as mentoring junior faculty and contributing to the educational mission of the Institute.

Qualified candidates will have an MD or PhD and a proven record of success in independent research in global primary care. Ideal applicants should have strong leadership skills and qualifications, with past experience serving in similar directorship positions and/or via a strong track record of leadership over large extramurally funded research programs.

The start date is negotiable and the position will remain open until filled.

To apply:

- Applications will only be accepted via email to Kate Klein, kate.klein@northwestern.edu
- Applications should include cover letter, CV, and three letters of reference
